Dr. Milda Chmieliauskaite, Assistant Professor of Oral and Maxillofacial Medicine at Case Western Reserve University, and an Attending staff member at the University Hospitals Cleveland Medical Center, has been awarded a 2017 Glennan Fellowship from CWRU. She is one of five tenure track faculty across the University selected to work on enhancing teaching effectiveness and faculty growth on a specific field. Her project will explore how to use innovation and design to integrate basic and clinical science components in the teaching of Oral Medicine to DMD students. Since joining CWRU in 2016, student evaluations of her courses have been in the top 2% of the Dental School curriculum.
